Venice, Italy in the 1970's, Patrizia, founder and artistic director, developed a passion for traditional Venetian glass blowing by watching her father, Antonio, performing this artful craftsmanship in his workshop. In 1980, Patrizia launched her very own collection of lighting fixtures blending modern techniques with the classical and elegant glass blowing style known around Venice. To this day, handcrafted Murano glass and precious crystal are key elements of any Patrizia Volpato piece.

Over the years, the brand successfully extended both its collection and its footprint across Europe and beyond and now also to the United States.

While traditional styles have always been the foundation of the company, contemporary creations and modern classics have been added to the growing collection of timeless lighting pieces that create the center piece or the noticeable accent to any luxury residential or commercial interior.

As of late, Patrizia also began designing large-scale custom installations by working with spaces, visionaries and designers to turn a blank canvas into a piece of art. Her motto is to unite the craftsmanship of the Venetian masters, innovative designs, the latest in lighting technology and top-quality materials.

"If you can imagine it, we can make it happen".

“We are thrilled to have found the right partner in IM Design Concepts and its impressive collection of regional representatives to help us launch our beloved brand in the United States” says Loris Corro, CEO of Patrizia Volpato, and Frank Fitzgerald, Co-founder and Vice President, Sales of IM Design Concepts comments: “There is no doubt that Patrizia Volpato, with its sophisticated traditional and modern designs and particularly the custom capabilities will be a success in our home territory and we are honored to be part of the PV team”.
